Beyond Vanilla Coming To Dallas

So whadda you know about BDSM? You know, bondage. Whips. Chains. Leather. Chances are your first impressions are a little off. The chasing of the big O through out this little planet of ours never ceases to amaze me and whether this fetish business is a lifestyle, fashion or just plain business to you might find yourself surprised at just how much you have in common as a Vanilla.

"Vanilla" used in the context of the BDSM (Bondage Discipline Sado-Masochism) community could be likened to plain 'ol regular sex. Vanillas are the muggles of the world to those in the lifestyle.

In 1990, The National Leather Association (NLA) took over an educational forum called Beyond Vanilla. It was a one-day formal presentation of leather, fetish and SM and ideas that blossomed into a full-fledged convention of sorts with attendees from every walk of life.

Through the past 19 years, the workshops have included topics such as "Our Kink Is OK!" Flogging, Bottom Issues and Perspectives, Fisting, SM and Domestic Violence, Switching, Fantasies, Fetish Wear, Gay and Lesbian SM - Coming Out For The Second Time, Age and Gender Play, SM and Spirituality, Fantasy To Reality, Protocol, Canings, Single tails, CBT, Polyamory, all types of relationship issues and just about anything else you'd ever want to know about Leather, SM, D/s and fetish activities.

According to event spokesmen, "Those who attend this year's event will be treated to a plethora of workshops, from SM scene techniques to the relationship aspects that are a part of this as well. We have presenters that are coming in from all over the country to speak on topics such as mummification, knife play, personality types, fears that we have in relationships, porcupine quills and needle play, the history of the Leather community and where it stands today, and sensual flogging. A full listing of the classes and the biographies of their presenters is also listed on the website for those wishing to take a gander at it. There is also the iPup/IPTC conference for those that are interested in the human puppy and what it takes to train one and make them fetch!

There is also the entertainment, both Friday night and Saturday night. There is a wonderful show at the hotel on Friday night with local entertainers and a midnight wrestling contest, and another entertainment show in conjunction with the Dallas Eagle Bar will be happening Friday night at the Eagle. Saturday night, after the Leather Dinner and Keynote Speaker Travis Wilson, will be another round of hot fun for attendees to watch with a fantasy contest taking place. That is if the attendees do not have a ticket to the Masquerade Ball and Play Party where all kinds of naughty fun are going to be had.

Then there is the Teeter-Totter-a-Thon, which benefits Bryan's House, a local charity that helps kids and teens with HIV/Aids. Every year, both Beyond Vanilla and the Teeter-Totter-a-Thon help raise money for charities like Bryan's House, among other local charities, who need funds to support a greater community. NLA-Dallas and Beyond Vanilla are committed to providing outreach and help where and when we can to those in need, and there is an auction of wonderful items that will be going on during the event that is also raising money for the designated charities this year."

Now you may be curious about all this but fear that you might be "outed" to your less than open minded fellows in the community. I addressed this issue of seclusion with an NLA representative who addresses the issue of secrecy by saying, "Not everyone in this world is accepting of what we do. It was not that long ago that being homosexual was not accepted or recognized under the law, neither was inter-racial marriage. In fact, the battle over civil rights is not totally won yet for many people and who they are as people in this country. We have a saying in the scene, "Don't scare the vanillas". By that, not everything we choose to do is done in public, and most times it is done in the privacy of one's home. Or at events such as Beyond Vanilla, where we can be with others who share our ideals, and to share ideas, on what it is that we do. NLA-Dallas is an open group however, we have a website, have meetings in public, thus we are not secluded or secret. We are out there. You just have to come find us."

I found them through my photographic work with them and even though I'm fairly gosh darn vanilla, I have to state for the record, they're a great group who's filled with vital, interesting, giving, people who want nothing more than an open mind. Your heart will follow vanilla or otherwise.

The basic registration for the event happening, September 25th - 27th, includes access to all workshops and seminars for the entire event weekend, access to IPTC and iPup, and an event pin. The price right now is $99.00 if you register online at the website, <http://www.beyondvanilla.org>. You can also purchase day passes on-line or at the event for either Saturday or Sunday. A full registration will be $110.00 at the door of the event. However, if you want to visit the vendor fair, where there are many different types of vendors selling their wares, or the entertainment scheduled is free with picture id to make sure everyone is of proper age (open minded types 18 and up). Also see www.nla-dallas.org for info in NLA activities through out the month.

This Wednesday is Billy Smith's birthday... if you don't know him, you ought to come down to July Alley, 2809 Elm Street in Dallas and meet him! Performing will be Dragna, Rodeo Clown Dropouts and Billy's band Charlie Mancini. No cover! And maybe there will be cake...

This weekend has not one but TWO KNON benefits you ought to attend, with something for every taste! This Friday, September 25th at the Sons of Hermann Hall, 3414 Elm Street in Dallas, you can catch Mark Ambrose from Austin, The Lonesome Losers from Dallas and Ed Burleson at the KNON 89.3FM Texas Renegade Radio Country Fish Fry, with free catfish plates courtesy of The Alligator Cafe. Doors are at 7:30 pm and the music starts at 8 pm.

And on Saturday, September 26th at Lakewood Lar & Grill, 6340 Gaston

Avenue in Dallas' beautiful Lakewood neighborhood, I will be holding my first KNON benefit, "An Evening of Funk, Soul and Rock 'n Roll" with Chicago-style group Definitely Maybe, the Tower of Power/James Brown tribute act Urban Renewal, the cacophany of Charlie Mancini and then rounding out the night will be Austin's Jungle Rockers. Doors at 8 pm, show at 9 pm. For tickets to either or both shows for our non-profit radio entity, go to www.knon.org and purchase in advance, or get tickets at Forever Young Records in Grand Prairie or Bill's in Dallas.

Adrian & The Sickness sent me a message on myspace with a link to their new video for their song, "Listening," co-written by The Go-Gos Kathy Valentine, who also produced their soon-to-be-released CD entitled BFD! The song and the video are freaking great, and I can't wait for them to send YRS4 her advance copy for review (hint...). You can check out the video by going to their www.myspace.com/adrianandthesickness or search for it on youtube.com.

Okay, the coolest thing I have done in a long time was go south on I45 to The Galaxy Drive-in in Ennis. Even though it's only a 20 minute or so trek, it was like I was on another planet! My man Chris and I loaded up Gringo Starr in the van and had a blast! We saw White Out (don't waste your time unless you're just hot for Kate Beckinsale) and District 9... I hope they play Zombieland there!

EDITOR IN DISTRESS

Well I was one busy little bee last weekend. Wednesday I left work early for a road trip to Oklahoma City for UFC Fight Night 19. It was my first time at a UFC event and I was a little dissatisfied. Majority of the fights were boring and went all three rounds. The food and drinks were expensive. The 3.2 beer gave me no buzz at all. Some huge six foot whatever dude got kicked out for drunkenness. Poor okies can get drunk on that stuff. Lucky them. The main events fights were good though, but I would have liked to have seen more action with the early fights. My friend and I were gonna spend the night in OKC, but the fights were over at ten pm, so we decided to drive back to Dallas.

Thursday we celebrated Sheila's birthday at Benihana's. The food and atmosphere there is awesome.

Friday my room mate and I stopped by Silver City Cabaret hoping to see Dana White. Sadly he wasn't there, but Antonio Rodrigo Nogueira was with his manager Ed Soares. That was cool but I had seen him twice before already, since he has a training center in Dallas. That would have been awesome if Anderson Silva was there.

Saturday I went to UFC 103 at the American Airlines Center. Pretty much all the fights were action packed and ended in either knock outs or submission. I had a pretty good view of the octagon from where I sat, though I think the UFC is way over charging. I paid $100 and I was pretty much at the very top of the arena. Plus the prices there are insane! $8 for a beer. $4 for a pretzel. The AA sold out that night but they should work with their customers in these hard times before we stop going out at all.

I grew up watching the Cowboys but I seriously doubt I'll ever go see a game at the new stadium. If we're talking about over priced, then I hear that's what you'll get there. They're actually charging $30 for these standing room only sections and if those area get to full, then you have to watch it on a big screen from another section. I rather go to a sports bar or strip club where most likely there will be food and drink specials.

With all this rain, this is a good week to stay home and relax. -Gil Tha Thrill

METRO ANE SPORTS

BARKIN' OUT LOUD

by Pat "Two Dogs" Snow

Well, here 'tis mid-week and I'm just wondering how many of you were surprised at just how this past week ended out? Has to be a bunch a ya 'cause I got the whoosits surprised outta me in a couple of places.

Like, how about the "arranged" penalty boxer Floyd Mayweather got stiffed for his weight?

Mayweather and Juan Marquez sign to go at it in a welterweight contest. There was a weight limit of 147 lbs, but each fighter agreed to a major penalty for each fraction of a pound and full pound over 144. Mayweather weighed in at 146.

There was no penalty for coming in under, which Marquez did at 142, so no fine to Marquez, but a reported six figure fine to Mayweather.

Mayweather has fought welterweight for around four years, but Marquez has only fought above 130 lbs a few times, like maybe three.

What's the deal?

Mayweather's coming out of a two year retirement and needs a fight. Marquez is game, but he'd normally be giving away about fifteen pounds, a large number in boxing. So whadda they do? For Mayweather to get a fighter who has to bulk up out of his weight class, he agrees to this fine. This is a substantial fine, six figures, and it all goes to Marquez.

What's this smell like? Well, Mayweather ended up punching out Marquez's clock, but through the fine, Juan gets more money to add to the loser's purse. Fighters can change weight class whenever they want, but personally, I think Mayweather shudda tried harder to find someone who's normally at the welterweight class. Cheesy.

How about a cheating scandal? What, cheatings so common place it's no scandal anymore? Oh yeah? How about the clean image of international Formula One racing?

And, no, ya'll, the surprise isn't the cheating, it's how it took place.

Here's what happened: at the 2008 inaugural Grand Prix in Singapore on lap 14, team Renault #2 driver Nelson Piquet lost control of his car resulting in a wall crash. That put the race under a yellow flag, which, Renault's #1 driver, Fernando Alonso, was in a pit stop and the yellow flag conditions basically benefited him and he went on to win the race.

As word begins to seep out that this might have been deliberate, Renault dumps Piquet who turns around and says team bosses ordered him to force faster laps, which he claims resulted in the loss of control and crash.

Renault has now been ordered to appear before the FIA Council, which has been investigating the incident.

There have been allegations in other team racing events of deliberate crashes to improve the team leader's position, but for cheating, this is the rankest of all. To deliberately crash to gain an advantage that also endangers the lives and careers of others is truly so lowdown it borders on criminal.

How about the surprise that's no surprise? Patriots coach, Bill Belichick, is the new owner of that old line: "if it weren't for no class, he wouldn't have any at all".

All Pro Defensive lineman Richard Seymour, drafted by New England and with them for nine years, has three Super Bowl rings, was given a phone call by Belichick and told he was being traded to the Raiders.

Seymour is a top talent, a straight forward guy, hard worker, practices great, and shows up on game day. He was the anchor on the defensive line. So what kind of respect does he get? A freaking phone call.

Belichicks, thus New England's, policy is the system (which is Belichicks) is greater than any player, and the players are mere pieces that can be shuffled at will.

Here's a couple of thoughts for you: do ya think ALL the players on that team now know that they're only worth a phone call? Do ya think they missed Seymour in that loss to the Jets?

Is confusion about NFL penalties a surprise? I guess not, that's so common now they're accepted with shrugged shoulders, or anger if it's your team involved.

Two separate incidents that routinely occur: a receiver is up in the air "in the end zone" and catches the ball, comes down on both feet, then rolls to the ground, where the ball gets loosened in his grip. It's ruled a NO touchdown.

A runner approaches the end zone right along the side line, dives into the air but the lower two thirds of his body is outside the playing field. The ball crosses the end zone line while the player is in the air, and when the player comes down, most of him is out of bounds. This is ruled a valid touchdown.

Ok, folks, there's a difference here between a run and a pass. If a runner is holding the ball in his possession and the ball crosses the end zone line, it's a TD. If a receiver catches a ball he must then still prove possession, which by the rules means not just come down inbounds but maintain possession. For the receiver it's not just a matter of the ball being grasped in his hands, the completion of the catch/possession cycle must occur.

Did you go to UFC 103 this last Saturday night? Great cards and great action, you'll be able to see it later on Spike or Versus if you missed it. In the main event Vitor Belfort knocked out Rich Franklin (no, NOT the noted local criminal defense lawyer), but that isn't where the action is ending up.

The UFC is in an argument with the State of Texas (like, that's a surprise?) over drug testing of the fighters. Two years ago Houston hosted the first UFC fight in Texas (UFC69), and the fighters never got drug screened. The UFC assumed that Texas, like most states, handled the drug screening.

In Texas the Department of Licensing and Regulation (TDLR), which events like the UFC would go to/thru for approval to stage a fight, does regulate drug screening but NOT for combative sports. IF the TDLR had reason to believe that drug testing was necessary they could order it, but they stated they didn't have sufficient good cause for UFC103.

It just seems to me that if Texas is going to have a licensing agency for events that normally includes drug screening to assure fair competition, then combative sports MUST be included in that process. The UFC has reached a high enough level of awareness and interaction with the public that provision of safeguards must be included and the UFC is correct in challenging the State to do so.

that you're more upset than the Steelers fans, or the Packers? Really?

Pittsburgh lost to, gulp, the Bears, and Green Bay lost to the Bengals. We lost to the Giants. In my opinion the Bears and Bengals were far weaker opponents than what we faced. Yeah, New York didn't play well in spots but they played very well in other area, like the passing game.

The Bears and Bengals offenses don't have the receivers the Giants have, and the Steelers and Packers were NOTED FOR their defenses.

Everybody can lose a game, what's more important is, are there areas that can be improved upon with the players available to succeed this season? The answer is an emphatic YES. Actually, the only point I really felt there was a hot iron burning my patookus was the time management at the end of the game.

The Giants are using a no huddle offense to limit Dallas substitutions, the clocks down under two minutes, and New York goes slow. Duh. Use a time out. What's the big question with that? The Giants get well in to field goal range, the clock keeps running down, and finally Dallas calls a time out to "get in the field goal kickers head". That to me was stupid. Let's fix that.

Were there any other surprises over the NFL weekend? I'd say so. And the biggest one was that there were a bunch of really well played games. More teams were "bringin' it" than in the past, and this makes for a fans life.

Most of you didn't believe that the Jets could back up their new head coach, but I told you that was gonna be one of the best games of the day to watch, and baby, it was. The Saints offense beating the crudola out of the Lions in game one was sort of a nod off, but the test was game two against the Eagles D, and whoa, can New Orleans bring it. The Saints offense has been very good, but the defense questionable at best, and with new Defense Coordinator, Greg Williams, they're turning that around. Philly didn't lose, they didn't quit, no sir, New Orleans simply beat 'em up.

The pundits all thought the Texans season was over until they beat the Titans, who, at 0-2, are looking for answers. And what have I been telling you about San Francisco? No, not the wine country, the 49er's. Yeah, bucko's, Singletary has that defense up and running. These two teams, the Texans and Niners, are gonna be a prime example this season of what a great defense with a good offense can do. Hang on to your seats.

NFL Week 3

The Dolphins and Colts played on MNF and that's too late for this column, so their records are represented a game less.

Sunday noon games:

You are gonna have stinkers and, hoo boy, these are them: Redskins (1-1, road 0-1) at Lions (0-2), Packers (1-1, road 0-0) at Rams (0-2), Chiefs (0-2) at Eagles (1-1, home 0-1), Giants (2-0) at Buc's (0-2), and Browns (0-2) at Ravens (2-0, home 1-0). This might be a game the Lions can win, it's at home and the 'Skins are struggling early. Packers should win, but Spagnuolo has got the Rams defense playing much better. The Browns may be scheduled to play at Baltimore but just what have they got to show up with? Nada.

Two "could be" good games, but that's because two of the teams are already in "must win" situations. Titans (0-2) at Jets (2-0), and Jag's (0-2) at Texans (1-1, home 0-1). Titans QB Collins does NOT need to be benched for Vince Young, and Jag's QB Garrard isn't the answer. Both the Jet's and Texans defenses are coming after these guys.

And folks, these two are what we fire up the grills for: Falcons (2-0) at Patriots (1-1, home 1-0), and 49er's (2-0, road 1-0) at Vikings (2-0). The Patriots are vulnerable and that's the wrong position to be in facing the Falcons right now. Both the Bills and Jets have shown everyone what to do, attack Brady and attack that defense. Atlanta's salivating all over their cleats. The Vikings are gonna be favored, but don't believe no high point spread. Singletary's defense seems to get stronger with each hit, and they're gonna come after Favre with chain saws blazing fire. This is gonna be a rough game.

3 o'clock games

You got five games here and it's not a real strong lineup.

Denver (2-0, road 1-0) at Oakland (1-1, home 0-1), Steelers (1-1, road 0-1) at Bengals (1-1, home 0-1) are two dust bin games. The Bronco's and Raiders might be excited but frankly they're the only two. The Bengals defense is playing much better, but without an offense to balance things out, the Steelers blitzkrieg will steamroll them.

Possibly slightly better game, Saints (2-0, road 1-0) at Bills (1-1, home 1-0). The Saints are for real and that offensive production against the Eagles was no fluke. The Bills offense has to figure a way to stay on the field.

Should be fun but nothin' to write home to momma about: Dolphins (0-1) at Chargers (1-1). Miami has a better shot at winning this, but mostly because of San Diego injuries.

And here we have the game of the afternoon: Bears (1-1, road 0-1) at Seahawks (1-1, home 1-0). Chicago's defense against Seattle's offense will be good, and I give that to the Bears. The question still remains about the Bears receiving corps. If the Seahawks defense can keep the Bears off the field, they'll have a chance, otherwise, the Bears are gonna pound.

This is a question mark game for both teams: Colts (1-0) at Cardinals (1-1, home 0-1). Can these two turn it up for a national audience on Sunday night? Yeah, they can. Arizona went to Jacksonville and blew the Jag's off the map, and the Colts are smoothing that offense out. The edge here may go to the Cards, but that's only if they continue to push that offensive red button. Both defenses can rise above average.

Monday Night Football

I hate to say it, but who knows what the heck's gonna happen here: Panthers (0-2, road 0-1) at Cowboys (1-1, home 0-1). IF, and for right now this appears to be a big IF, Dallas rebounds from last week's miserable performance against the Giants, then the Panthers might be in for a long night. The good news for Dallas is they're strong against the run, which is Carolina's weapon of choice. If either QB finally gets to playin' at the pro level, they could make the other side pay. Let's hope Romo gets it together.

Readers Response:

Two Dogs:

Did Texas play the better game and beat Tech or merely outlast them? Do you think Leach's early call for an onside kick gave the game away? Colt McCoy looks very shaky.

Don

Don:

I thought it was a great football game for the most part, and Texas won it on play. The media's trying to portray Colt has having the weight of the world on his shoulders for "winning it all", and if true, that's something Coach Brown HAS to rid him of. My opinion on that is balderdash. Colt's been quarterbacking quite a while and he knows what fans expectations can create. No, I think it's just they've been slow getting into a game rhythm. Onside kicks are the kinda calls a coach is either gonna be a hero or a goat over and this one turned out poorly for Leach. He needed a gutsy call and a break but the ball didn't bounce their way.

Kanye Can Help Obama Pass Health Care Reform

I've figured out how President Obama can get health care reform passed. He must equate opposition to reform with support for Kanye West and John Gosselin. Never mind all of those facts and figures. They may work on a country that prioritizes their quality of life over the coverage of their pop culture, but that ain't us. Numbers make our heads hurt; gossip makes our world go 'round. Just look at this past week, when the Max Baucus health care reform bill was set to be released. The top trending topics on Twitter were all some form of the Kanye West/Taylor Swift dust up, with the exception of a happy birthday wish for one of the Jonas brothers. Public option, single payer...most people don't understand it, and don't listen when it is explained to them. What they do understand is each other's indignation over a guy leaving his wife when they have eight kids and running into the arms of a much younger woman. To them, that's the kind of stuff that really matters.

Last week, in a recorded conversation with a reporter that was supposed to be off the record, President Obama called Kanye West a "jackass" for interrupting Taylor Swift's acceptance speech at The MTV Video Music Awards. After months of getting no traction on being the first president to reform the health care industry in a way that many presidents of both political parties have failed to do, I thought that this comment was the beginning of turning the tide of apathy. You see, I have come to believe that people are mostly stupid, and that that is exactly the way they like it. The opponents of health care reform count on this sentiment to mount the resistance to change, because such change will turn them into socialists, and make them have abortions, and give illegal immigrants free abortions. They fall for it all because they are busy texting in votes to get their favorite American Idol contestant onto next week's episode in the only election that they are really motivated to vote in.

With Obama's admonishment of West, he inadvertently went a long way toward winning over the support of those who might otherwise oppose him. They may not understand the importance of regulating the health care industry, but they sure don't want to be caught on the wrong side of the Kanye issue. What he did to that young girl was wrong, and if you agree with that, then both of you must be on the same side. Now the next step...

Barack Obama must appear at a town hall meeting, holding one of his daughters like a sack of potatoes, Sarah Palin style. From the podium, he must berate John Gosselin for abandoning Kate, while suggesting that Gosselin is exactly the type of guy who opposes health care reform. For that matter, neither does Kanye West. Who does want it? Glad you asked.

First lady Michelle Obama is already stumping for reform. Book her on Oprah, and allow Oprah to mobilize the stay at home troops. At that very moment, a surprise appearance from Kate Gosselin as the three women embrace seals the deal. No woman will want to be left out of this tea party, and no man will have the power to resist the lobby of his newly indoctrinated spouse.

Look, I know it's not a clean win. I pay Blue Cross over $300 a month for a two person catastrophic policy that covers next to nothing. I need a public option, and right now the only option that I can see comes by way of the general public having more disdain for a rapper and a reality TV star than they do for The President of The United States, if only for the fact that the pay more attention to the former than the latter.

$10,000 Freedom Grill Will Make Other Tailgaters Weep

The Freedom Grill takes the tailgate barbecue to the next level. This $10,000 beast has a DOT-approved trailer hitch that will come in handy whether you're waiting to see the Cornhuskers or out selling vegan burritos outside the Phish show. (Please tell us you aren't doing the latter.)

When we say the makers of the Freedom have thought of everything, we don't just mean six burners, insulated storage and a bottle opener, though that's a good start. This behemoth also has a flagpole holder, so you can represent with your favorite team's flag or with Old Glory.

Just be careful with grease fires when you've got the Stars and Stripes flying, because you don't want everyone in the stadium parking lot to watch you turn the flag into a s'more. They might construe it as an attack on Freedom, both literally and figuratively.

YELLOW CARD

This magnet was tossed onto your car by a motorcyclist who felt that you might have been driving in a way that could have endangered their life.

They chose to toss this magnetic note because it can neither damage your automobile, nor affix itself to rubber or glass and therefore will not affect your driving. It serves to warn you.

With thoughtful contemplation and reverence for humanity, we can adjust our behavior to allow for all people to live life.

This is a yellow card, let's please not let things get to Red.

without the slightest hint of consideration, you can toss one of these cards onto their rear panel. WMF1 Coffee Pad Machine

The WMF1 is another one of those compact coffee machines that uses "coffee pads" to brew a single cup at a time, pretty much anywhere you're willing to take it. But it manages to stand out from the crowd by oozing with style. While the machine itself is made of plastic, the included mug is made of porcelain and from what I can tell, given the shape of the cutout, that's the only mug you'll be able to use it with.

The water reservoir only holds enough H2O for a single cup of joe, which is a good thing since it means you'll have to use fresh water each time, and the machine is only heating as much water as it needs to.

Russians Get Prizes For Producing Babies

Couples in population-crisis hit Russia are being encouraged to make love for the Motherland with TVs and fridges being offered to those who produce babies.

In an initiative labelled Conception Day, couples across the city of Ulyanovsk pledged to do their bit for patriotic procreation.

If the reward of a newborn baby is not enough, there is the added bonus of a television, fridge, cash or in the case of the Magarin family - a brand new car aptly named The Patriot.

Prizes can only be given if the babies are born on the National Day of June 12. Conception Day is part of the move to fight the demographic crisis which is predicted to see Russia's population shrink by 26 million by 2050.

Denmark Pulls 'Promiscuous' Video

A video promoting tourism in Denmark has been removed from YouTube after complaints it promoted promiscuity.

The three-minute clip shows a young blonde woman, trying to find a man whom she had a one night stand with, who fathered her child "August".

VisitDenmark's manager, Dorte Kiilerich said the film was supposed to be a "nice and sweet story of a woman". But Denmark's Economy Minister, Lene Espersen, said it "was not a very well-thought-out picture of the country".

In the advert, the woman says - in English - that she was "trying to find August's father. We met one night a year and a half ago when you were on vacation here in Denmark. We met... and then decided to have a drink and, yeah, it's really embarrassing but it's more or less what I remember. I don't remember where you're from or even your name."

Critics says the video implied that along with traditional tourism, Denmark was a place to go to have unprotected sex with strangers.

One Danish newspaper, Ekstra Bladet, labelled it "grotesque" and a "waste of taxpayers' money". The video also prompted a slew of angry comments, with one user saying it was a "tasteless, tactless way of attracting attention".

Ms Kiilerich said she regretted any offence the video may have caused, but the intent had been to tell "a nice and sweet story about a grown-up woman who lives in a free society and accepts the consequences of her actions".

The YouTube clip received more than 800,000 hits and although the official video has been removed, copies have been spreading across YouTube.

Why Women Have Sex: To Relieve Boredom, Win Favours Or To Stop A Headache

For every woman expecting the earth to move, it would seem there are two with more practical motives. From relieving boredom, to keeping the peace in a relationship or even curing a headache, the reasons for succumbing to the advances of the opposite sex are many and varied. Romance and passion, it has to be said, comes rather low down the list, according to a new book.

Cindy Meston and David Buss, authors of Why Women Have Sex, highlight 200 specific reasons.

'Research has shown that most men find most women at least somewhat sexually attractive, whereas most women do not find most men sexually attractive at all,' conclude the authors, both psychology professors at the University of Texas.

Having apparently discounted physical attraction, the 1,000 women interviewed by Prof Meston gave a huge range of reasons for sleeping with a man.

One said she did it for a spiritual experience, proclaiming: 'It's the closest thing to God.'

Other reasons included: 'he bought me a nice dinner', 'he spent a lot of money on me early on' and 'he showed me he had an extravagant lifestyle'. And rather than love or romance, for many women sex is just about fun.

Six in ten university students in one survey said they regularly slept with a male friend who was not their boyfriend.

One, who was at a different college from her boyfriend, explained it was because 'life is too damn short to be waiting four years to have sex again'.

Others confessed they did it to improve their sexual performance, with one explaining: 'I have had sex with my boyfriend to make my sexual skills better.'

Study Links Penis Size To General Health

A study by researchers at Victoria University (Australia) into penis size and body image found that men with a larger-than-average penis had higher self-esteem and better overall general health. Interestingly, the study also found that while size does matter to men, it matters chiefly in relation to how they shape up compared with other men.

The study, which investigated the link between men's penis size, body image and mental health, found that men who indicated a larger-than-average penis size had higher self esteem, better general health functioning and higher overall body satisfaction than those reporting an average or below-average sized penis. The study was completed online by more than 700 men aged 18-76 from more than 40 countries.

Other insights from the study include: Compared to their ideal body size, 6 percent of respondents were satisfied with their body size, 90 percent wanted to be bigger and 7 percent thought they were already bigger than the ideal.

Participants who had never used erectile dysfunction meds were more satisfied with their penis size and had less online dating experience than those who had.

Overweight men have lower self esteem, higher body dissatisfaction and greater use of the internet for socializing.

Men who were happy with the size of their penis were less likely to engage in online dating.

City Advertises Porn On Website By Accident

Authorities in the western German city of Gelsenkirchen accidentally advertised porn among the services on offer for residents on its website.

"It was a mistake," said a spokesman for the city authorities Tuesday. "There was never any intention of the city providing pornography as a service."

The administrative error arose when an employee compiling the list thought that brothel owners might type "porn" into the search box to find out about the city's sex tax, he added.

The city has now removed the word from the list.

GOP Sen. Coburn's Staffer: Porn Makes Boys Gay, 'Turns Your Sexual Drive Inwards'

Michael Schwartz, Chief of Staff for Senator Tom Coburn (R-Okla.) believes pornography can turn boys gay. And he recently suggested at a conservative family values conference, that parents should inform their sons about the scary homosexual consequences from viewing porn, as a deterrent to peeking inside a Playboy magazine. Schwartz made his bizarre comments during a breakout session at the Values Voter Summit entitled, "The New Masculinity," where he appeared on the speaking panel and was tasked with speaking about, "how men, who already are good husbands and fathers, can change the culture."

Schwartz soon began speaking on the subject of pornography calling it a "blight" and a "disease" that parents with sons would be confronted with. He then warned the attendees he was going to veer into "politically incorrect," territory noting that teenage boys show a low tolerance for homosexuality:

Schwartz then spoke of a gay friend who once made an "an astonishingly insightful remark," equating pornography with homosexuality:

"all pornography is homosexual pornography because all pornography turns your sexual drive inwards. Now think about that. And if you, if you tell an 11-year-old boy about that, do you think he's going to want to go out and get a copy of Playboy? I'm pretty sure he'll lose interest. That's the last thing he wants." You know, that's a, that's a good comment. It's a good point and it's a good thing to teach young people."

FEELING DIRTY

All About Porn: Releases, News and Stars!

Schwartz then reasoned that if porn fails at turning men gay, viewing it would result in a man loving his wife less.

UK Kid Sees Porn In Apple Store, Mom Freaks

A mom is furious after her ten-year-old girl was exposed to pornographic images after picking up an iPod in a shop at Lakeside.

Helen Goodman, 37, said her daughter, Eleanor, was left shocked after innocently looking at an iPod Touch on display at the Apple store.

Mrs Goodman said: "She picked up one of the demo models and it was playing pornographic material.

"I called to complain, and was told matter of factly by staff this happens a lot as people come in and download it for a laugh.

"I don't find it funny and all my friends think it's disgusting, but Apple say there is nothing they can do to stop it."

Mrs Goodman, of Edmund Drive, Chafford Hundred, has warned other parents.

She said: "If they can't guarantee 100 per cent internet safety for the kids visiting the store, I feel they should not be allowed to offer internet access to the public without supervision."

Fleshlight Releases Teagan Presley Custom Fleshlight

Interactive Life Forms, the makers of Fleshlight male sex toys, has announced the release of its custom-molded Teagan Presley Fleshlight. The item is the latest addition to the popular Fleshlight Girls line of products.

"We are very excited about the introduction of the Teagan Presley Fleshlight into our lineup of custom-molded adult stars," said Steve Shubin, CEO of Interactive Life Forms. "Not only is Teagan one of the two most sought-after girls in an ongoing online poll on FleshlightGirls.com, she also is one of the best personalities we have had the pleasure of representing."

In partnering with Skinworxxx pictures on the deal, Fleshlight will make available all the top-rated Skinworxxx features featuring Teagan as the perfect complement to the product.

"In partnering with Fleshlight we can finally offer Teagan's fans and newcomers alike a product that's the next best thing to the real-life Teagan Presley experience," commented Josh Lehman, president of Skinworxxx.

The Teagan Presley Fleshlight will be available in the popular Lotus texture, designed to mimic the subtleties of vaginal intercourse. The retail price of the Teagan Fleshlight will be $79.95, with a variety of additional DVD and custom package deals to become available shortly upon release.

IT'S HARD TO FIND A GOOD DONKEY SHOW

The Weekly Adventures Of OJ Tobias

"WHAT THE FK?" I screamed into Bill's ear as he slept quietly with some bimbo that had poor taste in dudes.

Instead of responding like a civilized person, he started screaming like the bimbo in the bed next to him,

"OJ, WHAT THE FK?" He repeated my question. At this point I felt he was really trying to piss me off.

"DON'T TRY THAT FKING CHIROPRACTOR SHIT WITH ME!" I wanted Bill to realize that he was not going to sweet talk me like in the past. "WHAT THE FK? YOU ARE ONE SORRY MOTHERFKER!"

"GET THE FK OUT OF MY HOUSE. WHAT THE FK? GET THE FK OUT! I DON'T HAVE TIME FOR YOUR CRAZY SHIT!" Bill was pulling on his pants and going to his gun safe. I really should have been more concerned at this point. But I was still pissed off at Bill. What kind of sorry fk gets married with out my blessing?

"Oj," Bill had stopped yelling, which I took as a good sign as he concentrated on the combination of the safe. "I have dreamt of the moment you would be stupid enough to break in to my house."

"Bill, I didn't break in. Your upstairs window was open. I just backed my truck up to your house. I ain't no burglar." Well, that he can prove. "I am upset you did not even invite me to the wedding. I thought we were best friends..."

"What the fk are you talking about?" He turned around. "There are so many fking things wrong with what you just said. You don't even know my real name, Dickhead."

"What the fk, Bill?" I guess he was quizzing me, but I decided to turn it around. "Don't quiz me. I am turning this shit around. What's my name, since your Mr. Know Everything...?"

Bill sighed and leaning against the safe. "If I tell you, will you leave and promise never to see me in person again?" Bill didn't have a chance. I would forget all about this shit in the morning anyway, so it was a win/win for me.

"You have my word."

"You are Oj Tobias, aka Ojizzle, aka Dj Choke a Ho, aka The Juiceman, aka King Ding-A-Ling, aka O to the J, aka Omar, unless you came up with some other dumbass name to call yourself this week." Damn, Bill had really been editing my column. I thought he just threw that shit on the printer when I wrote it. But he was right, I had a new alias. But considering he just got married I did not want to ruin his good time with the bar skank while his wife was away.

"Okay, you win!" I got up and left. I figured he would find out my new alias as soon as his credit card bill came in. Being Bill Russell has really opened doors for me. I wonder if Ali knows what Bill looks like. Maybe I could impersonate him and start editing the paper. I am going to do just that.

J BLAKE'S Joke of the week

A man and his wife go to their honeymoon hotel for their 25th anniversary. As the couple reflected on that magical evening 25 years ago, the wife asked the husband, "When you first saw my naked body in front of you, what was going through your mind?" The husband replied, "All I wanted to do was to fk your brains out, and suck your tits dry." Then, as the wife undressed, she asked, "What are you thinking now?" He replied, "It looks as if I did a pretty good job!"

Powerball Winner Uses Money to Fund Bikini Wrestling Show

The word hero is tossed around a lot these days, but there's no other way to describe Jay Vargas, a 21-one-year-old Powerball winner who's using his money to fund a bikini wrestling show.

Vargas, who at 19 became the youngest Powerball winner ever, has put part of his $17 million payout toward the development of "Wrestlicious," which features professional wrestling, sketch comedy and lots of scantily clad babes.

When Vargas won the lottery two years ago, he pledged to spend his money wisely. "I didn't have the temptation to go out and buy 15 cars or 50 houses, or a big mansion with 50-plus rooms," Vargas said. "I just want to be comfortable."

So this young entrepreneur packed up and moved from South Carolina to Tampa, Fla., the home of many professional wrestlers, to make his bikini-wrestling TV show dreams come true. In this age of corporate greed, it's refreshing to see a rich guy who wants to give back.

A pilot episode hosted by Jimmy "Mouth of the South" Hart has been shot and producers are currently looking for a network to pick up the program. How can any network executive resist this promo?

Will This Breathing Sex Doll Eliminate The Need for Girlfriends?

Behold, "Andy," the new Android sex doll that will eliminate the female species and, more importantly, the need to return sexual favors. Just kidding, but this is undoubtedly a giant leap forward for the awesome, disturbing and ultimately victorious robot takeover, just like "Terminator 2" foretold.

The unfortunately named Andy (couldn't they have at least spelled it with an "i"?) is adjustable, allowing for all sorts of sexual positions, plus it comes equipped with a "heavy breathing" feature, a g-spot that you might one day locate, and a variety of lifelike features. The dolls are referred to as "synthetic humans" by their manufacturer, First Androids, and retail in the neighborhood of 2600 Euros ($3820).

Some female writers warn guys that the dolls can't converse, have a social life of her own that doesn't involve you or "reject douchebags." In other news, First Androids just received four million new orders for the doll. Now, if we could just settle the debate on whether it counts as cheating have sex with robot hookers.

Miss Exotic USA '09

By: Ms. Misha Moré

The Miss Exotic USA Finals was held at Rick's Cabaret Las Vegas. Performances were given by Tiffany West, Tali De'Mar, Montrell, and Shay Lynn, Rachelle Laree and Gia Nova who performed one of their Blondelicious Duo shows. Last but certainly not least, Daisy Duxe performed her Michael Jackson Tribute show. Then it came time for the presentation of the winners.

The winners of the mini-titles were: Most Beautiful Face - Serena Marie Hottest Body - Krystle Cummings Hardest Body - Sophie Best Breasts - Roxanne Hottest Buns - Sondra Saxon Hottest Legs - Tanya Towers (At six feet one inch tall, how could she miss?) Hottest Stage Personality - Lizzy Styles Hottest Newcomer - Tiffany West Pole-Champion - Asia Hottest Gymnast - Montrelle Most Original Show - Madison Q Best Show - Tali De'Mar Audience Favorite - Stephanie Stalls Best Costumes - Crystal Rayne.

The Miss Exotic USA winners were: Fourth place - Asia, representing Little Darlings, Las Vegas, Nevada Second runner up - Montrelle, representing Delilah's, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania First runner up - Tiffany West, representing On the Border, Wisconsin and Tali De'Mar, representing Delilah's, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, is now the currently reigning Miss Exotic USA

Montrelle and Tali both represented Delilah's from two different states and the regional contest they both placed in was held at Delilah's.

Last year's Miss Exotic USA, Robyn Foxx presented the crown to Tali.

All of the ladies who competed in this contest will also be competing be at the 46th Miss Nude World 2009 contest to be held in the North Myrtle Beach, South Carolina area. Miss Nude World will be held at the Crazy Horse from September 29th through October 3rd.

Both the Miss Exotic USA and the Miss Nude World contests are products of, "the Worlds Pageants," which is owned by Rio Rivera.

My thanks to Don Waitt and all of the Exotic Dancer Publications staff for providing us all with a terrific event! I look forward to next year's event. I also heard that the Exotic Dancer Fan Fair event may be resurrected in the very near future. I certainly hope so, and I hope that it is a huge success as it has been in the past.

Did I Ever Tell You The One About... And other strange oddities of the world

Naked Man Riding Motorcycle Charged With DUI

Authorities say a Florida man was charged with driving under the influence after he was spotted riding his motorcycle naked. The Marion County deputy was driving on Interstate 75 early Tuesday when he spotted what appeared to be a naked man on a motorcycle. The deputy caught up with 45-year-old J. Dante Krauss at a red light and stopped him.

Capt. Mike Rolls said Krauss could not explain where he was coming from or why he was naked. Rolls said the deputy asked him if he had been drinking, and he answered that he had. Breathalyzer tests revealed blood alcohol levels above .08, the state's legal limit to drive.

Krauss was charged with what Rolls said turned out to be his fifth DUI.

NC Doctor Removes Plastic Fragment Lodged In Lung

Doctors say a North Carolina man who was plagued with coughing fits should be OK now that they have removed a 1-inch piece of plastic from his lung, where it had rested since he apparently inhaled it nearly two years ago while sucking down a soft drink at a Wendy's restaurant.

Doctors at Duke University Medical Center say the plastic fragment of an eating utensil — with the Wendy's logo still legible on the side — was likely to blame for the coughing, fatigue and pneumonia spells that plagued John Manley for almost two years.

They pulled the fast-food foreign object from Manley's left lung during a Sept. 10 surgery. The 50-year-old Wilmington resident said he probably inhaled it while gulping a drink from Wendy's.

Beijing Chocolate Theme Park To Open Next Year

China plans to cater to the country's rising number of chocoholics with the opening next year of a Willy Wonka-style theme park in Beijing, complete with a replica Great Wall, state media said Thursday.

The 'world chocolate dream park', reminiscent of Roald Dahl's beloved book "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory", will feature a life-size edible Terracotta Army, Great Wall and versions of famous paintings, the China Daily said.

"Our 'chocolate wonderland' will be beyond the imagination," Tina Cheng, general manager of the company that will operate the park, was quoted as saying.

The park, due to open in January 2010. The site will include five pavilions and two outdoor sites where chocolate-made objects, such as the replica Great Wall, will be on display, the report said.

Chocolate is not as popular in China as it is in Western countries, but the sweet treat is increasingly popular with the nation's younger generation.

Cheng was quoted as saying that a number of prestigious chocolate makers from Europe, including Belgium and Switzerland, wanted to participate in the project, but she would not reveal their names.

Naked Gun: 91-Year-Old Nude Fla. Man Makes Arrest

Authorities say a 91-year-old South Florida man jumped out of bed naked and held an intruder at gunpoint until deputies arrived.

The Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office said Robert E. Thompson woke up Saturday morning after a would-be burglar climbed his backyard fence and was met by his charging dog, Rett, a Rottweiler and Doberman pinscher mix. Thompson heard the commotion, grabbed his .38-caliber revolver and phoned police without ever getting dressed.

Deputies say Thompson fired a warning shot as 26-year-old Jose Pasqual started to come toward him. Thompson kept his gun trained on Pasqual until deputies arrived.

Unfaithful Woman Seeks 2nd Chance By Wearing Sign

An Ohio woman who said she was unfaithful has chosen a very public way of asking her boyfriend not to break up their engagement. Jess Duttry, 19, stood outside a supermarket parking lot in northern Ohio this week with a handwritten sign that said "I cheated" and "Honk if I deserve a second chance." On the back, Duttry had scrawled, "I honestly love him."

She said she choose to stage her vigil Wednesday evening after her fiance took back his ring earlier that day when she confessed she'd cheated on him this summer.

It's not clear if he saw the message, but Duttry said dozens of people honked, and some got out of their cars to hug her and wish her well.

Woman Uses $20 Bill Printed In 1934 In UPS Store

What a Dickinson business manager thought was a worthless counterfeit $20 bill turned out to be worth more than even face value. A woman who came into the UPS Store paid with a $20 bill that had been printed in 1934. Store manager Nancy Kostecky said the bill is in pristine condition.

The woman who paid with the bill was unsure where she got it. Kostecky said it's a mystery where it came from and why it had not been in circulation. She ended up buying it from the woman.

Dickinson Police Detective Chris Coates did some checking and says similar bills are selling on eBay for up to $134.

Kostecky said she plans to give the bill to her father, who collects coins.

TV's 'Newlywed Game' Features First Gay Couple

Even as states and jurisdictions made gay and lesbian marriages legal, "The Newlywed Game" has played it straight — until now.

The long-running game show, now on the GSN cable network, said Wednesday it will feature its first gay couple this season on a celebrity edition. George Takei, who played Mr. Sulu on "Star Trek," will appear with his partner, Brad Altman.

They just celebrated their first anniversary after being married in Los Angeles last September, but they're nothing like the giggly young couples the game is known for. Takei and Altman have been together for 22 years.

"What we want is to display the normality and the joy of having a happy union," Takei said.

"The Newlywed Game" has been on TV off and on since it premiered in prime-time on ABC in 1967, mostly with Bob Eubanks as host. Singer Carole Wilson is now host of the show, which is in its second season on GSN and done well in the ratings for the network.

Kelly Goode, GSN's programming chief, said she couldn't speculate on why gay couples were never included in the past because GSN, the former Game Show Network, has only been responsible for the show for two years. She said it was in the game's rules that the couple needed to have a legally-recognized marriage to play.

The change "made sense for GSN," Goode said. "It seems like the show has always reflected the times in terms of marriages depicted and this felt like the next logical step."

Takei and Altman haven't taped their episode yet but expect to do so soon. GSN hopes to air in October.

Prejean: 'God Chose Me' To Advocate Against Gay Marriage

Speaking at the Value Voters Summit, Carrie Prejean told a conservative audience that she was chosen by God to oppose gay marriage, POLITICO reported.

The former Miss California spoke on the opening day of the three-day meet up of conservatives sponsored by Tony Perkin's Family Research Council (FRC), an ardent opponent of gay and lesbian rights.

Prejean, 22, told the audience that "God had a plan for me that day" when she denounced gay marriage because of her religious upbringing during the Miss USA contest in April. She later aligned herself with Maggie Gallagher's anti-gay marriage group the National Organization for Marriage (NOM).

Openly gay celebrity blogger Perez Hilton, a member of the judging panel, asked her thoughts on gay marriage. "I could not believe that they were asking that question at Miss USA," she said Friday.

After placing second in the contest, Prejean argued that she was denied the crown because she refused to back down from her religious beliefs, turning the beauty queen into a Christian celebrity overnight.

Reflecting on the controversy, Prejean said, "I'm so proud of the answer that I gave. God chose me for that moment. I was a woman who stood up for the truth and people don't want to admit that," she said. "I had the courage and the bravery that a lot of people don't have. I am not defeated, they have not defeated me. They can say whatever they want about me and my faith," she said. "I always wanted to leave a legacy of courage and boldness and to show that to young people."

Miss USA Executive Director Keith Lewis fired Prejean after the gay marriage controversy died down, he said it was because she missed several appearances. Prejean is fighting the dismissal; in a lawsuit filed two weeks ago, she accuses pageant officials of libel, slander and religious discrimination.

Gay Group, TV Dance Show Reconcile

After praising a gay Latin ballroom couple and appointing an openly gay judge, Fox's reality dance show So You Think You Can Dance appears to be out of the anti-gay doghouse, Reuters reported.

In May, the show was called out by the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation (GLAAD) after dance judge Nigel Lythgoe riled the watchdog group with remarks he made during the show's premiere episode.

"I think you probably alienated a lot of our audience," Lythgoe told gay dancer Misah Belfer and his straight partner Mitchel Kibel after they completed their dance routine, then added, "I'd like to see you both dancing with a girl."

He later Tweeted, "I'm not a fan of 'Brokeback' Ballroom," a reference to the 2007 gay romance film Brokeback Mountain.

But on Wednesday, the show's judging panel was clearly elated over the performance of a gay couple.

"Thank you for showing me that same-sex ballroom dancing can be very strong and very good," Lythgoe told Jacob Jason and Willem De Vries after they completed their audition routine.

Earlier in the week, openly gay choreographer Adam Shankman was added to the show's judging panel.

The changes drew cheers from GLAAD President Jarrett Barrios, who said in a statement: "It is so important that the millions of everyday Americans viewing the show now have the opportunity to see couples like Jacob and Willem. Images like this build understanding and acceptance of our community and will inspire young LGBT dancers everywhere."
